NANTWICH SHOW CANCELLED FOR 2021

Despite the best efforts of the Nantwich Show committee and everyone involved in the organisation of the show, it has been announced today that the 2021 event will not go ahead due to the Coronavirus Pandemic.

Earlier in the year, organisers had announced that for the first time in 120 years the 2021 show was to be held on a Saturday (24th July), plans were well under way for a weekend event with sponsors and exhibitors looking forward to a record turnout.

Michael John-Parkin, chairman of Show organisers Nantwich Agricultural Society said:

"It is with extreme sadness we make this announcement that: due to the ongoing Coronavirus pandemic, we have taken the decision to cancel The Nantwich Show. It's the third consecutive year Nantwich Show has had to be cancelled. As this national crisis escalates, we feel we cannot safely run the Show in 2021".

"The Show is the main event for the Nantwich Agricultural Society and also brings thousands of pounds to the local economy of Nantwich and surrounding areas. Our heartfelt thanks go out to everyone in the food & farming industry: from farmers, manufacturers, food service and retail outlets who are doing a vital job keeping up the supply of their fantastic products, we know we can count on their support for 2022"

The Nantwich Show has been in operation since 1897 and its heritage is rooted in the agricultural community of Cheshire, the event has been held at Nantwich Showground at Dorfold Hall since 1946. The cancellation in 2020 was at considerable cost to the event organisers.

Michael John-Parkin said: " We are at the moment talking to our Landlords with regards to the future of the show at Dorfold Hall. All our sponsors, who are integral to the events success are putting new plans in place to support the society throughout these difficult times. We are confident that the future of the Nantwich Show is secure for 2022"

Obviously, everyone is disappointed with the news of yet another cancellation due to the Coronavirus pandemic, but rest assured, plans are in place for 2022 with an announcement about the date, later this year.
